GOLF NEWS

As Spring tries to sneak out from the remaining winter weather and the days get longer, we are preparing to dust off our clubs and get ready for a fast-approaching golf season. With the melting snow here at Eagle Brook, we can all start to enjoy the spring excitement for golf season and other outdoor activities. However, we must be mindful that we still need to wait to enjoy the course.

While the outside ambient weather may make us all feel it is time for an early round or two, we must also remember a few key components of course care. With the recent snow melt, our turf's surface is still experiencing frozen conditions causing numerous areas of saturated or soggy spots where water is not properly penetrating the ground's profile yet. This is also the time of year where any damage caused by high traffic could set us back a few weeks or even months until soils are properly warm enough for recovery and growth. There may be some days where we will need to keep the course closed due to these soil temperatures. Please understand these calls are very difficult to make, but our intentions are to better us in the months to come.

The season will begin soon enough and the turf team will be actively cleaning up all winter projects and preparing the course for another great golf Season.

Thank you,
EBCC Maintenance Team
